A BILL has just been introduced into the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements providing for the protection of women and children. From the statement of objects and reasons attached to the Bill we learn that it has been prepared under the instructions of the Secretary of State, and has been approved by him. Its principal object is to repeal what are known as the Contagious Diseases Ordinances, and to substitute for them provisions strictly confined to the purpose of protecting Asiatic women from oppression and brutality. It is considered that European women are able to take care of themselves. The Bill consolidates and extends the existing law for the protection of women and children, and the provisions as to the care of rescued females yesterday, at 8 a.m. are of such an exceptional nature that it is proposed the part of the Ordinance dealing with this branch of the subject should continue in force for two years only, or such further period or periods as may be from time to time fixed by resolution of to pay Singapore a visit for a fortnight comthe Legislative Council. Provision is made in Part. III, for requiring all brothels occupied by Asiatic women to be registered, and non-registration, is made as offence punishable with six months' imprisonment, but such registration will not operate as a licence to carry on such business; for although a registered, brothel will not be indictable as a public nuisance, unless conducted in such a way as to occasion an actual nuisance, all civil remedies are expressly reserved to all persons who are injured in any way by the existence of the brothel. It is-probable-that a similar Bill-will-shortly be introduced in this Colony, as the Colonial Office now encourages and promotes uniformity of legislation as far as possible in all colonies similarly circumstanced. Some time ago the Contagious Diseases Ordinance was suspended as regards the compulsory examination of registered women was concerned, but the women, so far from looking upon this as a boon, have continued to submit themselves voluntarily, I showing that they are fully conscious of the formed that much minery prevails amongst the advantages of medical supervision. In the Straits Settlements it would seem that examination has been suspended altogether. for we notice in the Penang Gusette a state- as many plantations have been entirely given up ment that," since the suspension of these by their owners. For brothel slavery which is so difficult to check the present moment. even with all the precautions that have been devised would grow to a fearful extent, with its attendant evil of the kidnapping of young girls. But, conceding the necessity for the an appeal to the Salvation Army in India for a through Committee, retention of these portions of the existing law. the opponents of the Contagious Diseases Acts are brought face to face with rather an awkward dilemma. What they have protested against is "state recognition of vice." By the registration of brothels state recognition of vice is continued. The object of the Acts in England was the prevention of disease; in the Eastern colonies they have a double ob-If the recognition is justifiable in pursuit of the latter object, is it less justifiable on the evening. The steamer Pathan, which arrived here from Kobe on Tuesday night, and the steamer Devawonges from the same part yesterday, both report exceptionally heavy weather, experienced near Ike Sime. The Pathan encountered a heavy gale from the north-west after passing that point, accompanied by very heavy seas, which broke over her for several hours. Towards noon on the 30th November the gale and sea increased. and it was with difficulty that the steamer could make any headway. Her starboard lifeboat was amendments in the same Bill, so as to have swept overboard, and the third officer, who was standing by at the time, was struck by it, but luckily not badly injured. There are some details with regard to fous, which speak for themselves and are provided for in Schedules G. and H. Then there is a provision for amending Section 21 of the Ordinance. The object is this. Some year or two ago an Ordinance was passed in which the Harbour Master was empowered to administer small estates of passengers who had died on the voyage to Hongkong. These estates were very small, consisting chiefly of baggage, and were administered in a summery manner by the Harbour Master in atead of going through the usual routine. This short clause simply makes legal provision for sending the report of the death of a passenger to the Harbon: Master on the arrival of the ship in port. This is generally done now. HE POWL'S OF POLICE MAGISTRATES AMEND. The ATTORNEY-GENERAL-I have to propose the first reading of a Bill to amond the powers of Police Magistrates. It is a somewhat large title for a comparatively small amendment in the Magisterial procedure and which may be only temporary, because I understand the Law Revi sion Commission have in hand a very considerable consolidation Ordinance which will provide a complete and comprehensive procedure by Ordinance for the Mugistrates' Court. In the meantime this is intended to remedy some little defects which have presented them selves in the last few months and which it is thought well to provide for at once without further delay. Section I. enables a Magistrate in any case where he has power to impose a pecuniary penalty to order recovery in the manner which is provided for the recovery of penalties in Ordinance 10 of 1844, that is by distraint in the first instance. Section 3 provides for cortain cases where a Magistrate has power to impose a fine but where the Ordinance which gives that power has not given in specified terms the power of imprisonment in default. It is a question whether that power does not reside in the Magistrate under the Ordinance, but it is well that it should be so expressed. The third section is a provision to enable the Magistrate to defeat, what I anderstand is not country should be kept in order as the outskists Trench should have found the. Medieval superstitions linger in Austria. The burgomaster of Zuraki, in Galicia, has just instituted a prosecution before the Criminal Court. of Solotwina against a man named Jean Kowalesink for having, " by his malicious sorceries and incantations, caused a hailstorm to devastate the fields of Zuraki on July 28." The damages are laid at 6,000 florins.

The Lancet has come to the rescue of cigarette makers and smokers. Having organized an Analytical Sanitary Commission, it now publishes their report, which should be worth a good deal to the Egyptian cigarette makers, who were especially attacked by "Medicus" not long ago.

Five well-known brands have been examined, and they are all reported to be made of gounine "tobacco, free from foreign substances, opium, or unclassified alkaloid." Still we gre told that it is "probably safer" to avoid (how?) Salouk tobacco (which seems to mean Smyrna tobacco), lest the throat may be affected by its use. All which leaves us much as we were before as to our knowledge of the risk run by cigarette smokers.

The point whather a soldier should salute his officer when the latter is in mufty, was once settled in a very amusing manner by Colonel Oakes, better known as Harry Oakes, Commanding the 12th Lancers. A young officer complained that while in plain clothes a certain soldier had not saluted him. The soldier's excuse was that he had not recognised the officer. "I'll take care you can't make that excuse in future," quoth Colonel Oakes. "Mr. M-, you will kindly walk up and down the burrack-square in plain clothes until Private N- is satisfied that he will know you again." The private gave the officer the benefit of about half an hour's walk, and all he conceded then was his ability to recognise the former in the suit he then were. "If you are not satisfied," said the Colonel, "you will appear in the square for ten minutes in each civilian suit you own; and whenever you get a new suit you will do the same, and let Private N-know." The young officer never complained again of not getting what he considered his proper due in the matter of salutes.

A curious story is related from Madrid in explanation of the misfortunes which have lately afflicted the royal house of Spain. It appears that the root of the mischief is a fatal ring of quite medieval dendliness. The late King Alphone: XII gave it to his cousin Mercedes when he was betrothed to her, and she were it during the whole of her short married life. On her death the King-presented it to his grandmother, the Queen Christins. She died very soon after; when it passed to the King's sister, the Infanta del Pilar, who at once began to sicken and in a few days also breathed her last. Alphonso then handed it to his sister-in-law Christina, the younger daughter of the Duke of Montpension; but in three months she also was dead. His Majesty now resolved to retain the baleful jewel in his own keeping; but he too soon fell a victim to its mysterious malignancy. By order of his widow it has now been suspended by a chain round the neck of the statue of the Maid of Almudens, the patron saint of Madrid.

This is a story of Sothern which was told to Mr. Toole by Mrs. John Wood. One day the famous practical joker went with Mrs. Wood into an ironmonger's shop, and asked for a copy of Macaulay's "History of England." " W do not sell books, sir," said the assistant. "This is an ironmonger's shop." "Well, I'm not particular," said Sothern, pretending to be deaf; "I don't care whether it is bound in oalf or Bussia." "But this is not a bookseller's." shouted the assistant. "All right," said Sothern " wrap it up neatly. I want to have it sent down to the botel. It's for a present I wish to make to a relative." "We don't keep it is shouted the assistant, gutting red in the face. " Do it up as if it were for your own mather. I don't want moything better than that," said Sothern. "I would like to write my name on the fly-leaf." "Sir," bawled the assistant at the top of his voice, " Can't you see we do not keep books?" "Very well," said, Sothern, quite undisturbed "I will wait for it." The clerk appealed to his master, and said he thought the customer must be off his head. "What is it sir? What do you desire ?" he said to Sothern. "I want to buy a file," replied the actor; "a plain file, four or five inches long." "Certainly," said the master, casting a withering glance at his assistant

NOW ON SALE. IMPERIAL QUARTO. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at

Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto-at ained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, tachieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore charac-

for the above Port, and will have a quick terized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 15,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and "DANIEL BARNES," other elementary works as yet published, the Storer, Master, shortly expected, will load here student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appli-eations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as 2174 many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete; that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted.

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.
